From the Inside Flap

"We all want to make progress, to grow and change. We want our lives to look differently today than they did last week and to light the darkness around us. But why is it so hard? Why is transformation so elusive? With characteristic insight and warmth, Steve pares away the external trappings of knowledge and morality and explores the inseparable link between the core truths we believe and the lives we actually live." Becky Kimball, Vintage Faith, Santa Cruz

"Steve does a masterful job explaining spiritual formation with ease, and with heart. He explains our spiritual growth in a way that we all can understand, apply, and start living out. I would recommend this book to anyone who truly longs to live the life Jesus intends for them to live!" Eric Parks, Red Rocks Church, Golden

From the Back Cover

"This book will be a source of hope and possibility for those who respond courageously to the summons of the author." Walter Brueggemann, author & theologian

"As I read Coming to Your Senses, I experienced a renewed hope; that the kind of radical, breath-taking change that Jesus offers really is possible for me. Instead of how-to's, I found a fresh way to think about change" Joe Bishop, Respero

"The stories of transformation shared in this book will not only awaken your own, but will make you ache for more . . . of your own." Bert Downs, Chancellor, Western Seminary

About the Author

Steve's next book, The Legionnaire's Son, is the intriguing account of discovering his Swedish father. In 1997, Steve received a shocking message that launched an incredible journey. The odyssey touched every aspect of his life. Steve discovered unknown secrets of his past and siblings he never knew existed. He encountered fascinating stories of heroes and villains; stories filled with plots and sub-plots; repeating story-lines of hope, tragedy and redemption. Steve learned dark secrets about his mother and hidden dramas within his home. Through it all, he found his own life redefined and his very identity reshaped.

A new book about God's unique plan for changing our lives. This book speaks to one of the most important yet least understood priorities of the Christian life--change. Steve Korch addresses two big questions: (1) How does God bring about authentic change in the lives of His people? (2) What does authentic change really look like? This is not just another "how to" book with more burdensome lists of application steps. In fact, there are none. While recognizing the vital role of practical direction, this book goes behind the "how to's" and addresses the very thoughts and images that drive the reader's decisions. Through stories, contemporary issues and creative exposition of the Scriptures Steve explores a different way of thinking that results in a different way of living. For readers who seek to live as different people, the promise of this book is simple: authentic change is literally a matter of coming to our (spiritual) senses.

An important contribution on spiritual vitality

By Dr. Gary Tuck

The title captures our attention and captures the heartbeat of the book. It is about "senses." And it is about how to break through to experience change for the better.

Professor and Pastor, Dr. Steve Korch directs our attention to the realm of the spiritual through such "senses" as wonder and presence and eternity, carefully keeping God at the center. He is not content with trivial or cliché banter but exhibits sensitivity to life even at its most painful. "Why am I doing what I am doing? Does any of this really matter? What's the point? ... Do I matter? Am I enough? Does anyone really care?"

He writes with engaging flow and vivid images and lively connection points. Most importantly, his message is gripping and serious. This life is temporal and terminal; we must concentrate on the unseen and eternal. For, ready or not, it will soon overtake us. Yet this life is important: important enough that we must change and change in improving ways.

"The change God desires to produce in us is tied to a larger story." Life is about the after-life. And the after-life hones our daily purpose, giving direction to intentional change. But it's the Life-giver who gives the power for that change.

A Treasure Map

By PW

Sometimes a 'reviewer' wants to stop writing about a book and stand up and CHEER. . . !

This book is a work of art.

Like the unfolding of a newly discovered treasure map, Steve Korch invites the reader to keenly inspect clues, step by step, together sleuthing out the answers which lead to identifying and ultimately experiencing authentic, permanent, whole-hearted, positive, genuine change.

Written with breathtaking transparency, genuine humility, humor (there are hidden treasures in the the body of work and in the 'footnotes' for the reader to discover), we are challenged to explore the ways in which what we believe determines how we live. . . and how we live reveals what we believe.

By looking at what's good and where we have gone astray, exploring assumptions and expectations, asking insightful, provocative, searching questions, a journey is begun--a journey that encourages and enables the reader to be reshaped by an entirely new way of thinking.

Clearly profound yet exuding the relaxedness of an over-a-cuppa-coffee-chat with a friend.

The reader cannot come away without having more fully 'come to one's senses' and begun a metamorphosis in perception, understanding and--ultimately--living.

Changed to the core

By Dee

"I am convinced that a changed and changing life is at the core of the Gospel... I am also convinced that God Himself is the sole agent of that change." Steve Korch

From the first pages to the last, this author has deftly woven the truth of our calling in Christ as about more than being changed into a new person, but a new kind of person – called not simply to a new life, but a new kind of life.

What I loved about the book, in a word - Transcendence - the forgotten factor of this new dimension in which and from which we are called to live.

Coming to Your Senses offers a clear path to the transcendent life available to every believer - an escape route from the good enough, mundane and disappointing to a reality perceivable only by our spiritual senses - formed by God's Spirit within us and nurtured by what our hearts believe – God's reality, and our (imperfect) significance in it. Loved it!!!
