Little did Nao Kogure realize back in middle school that when she left an umbrella and a box of bandages in the rain for injured delinquent Taiga Onise that she would meet him again in high school. Nao wants nothing to do with the gruff and frightening Taiga, but he suddenly presents her with a huge bouquet of flowers and asks her to date him—with marriage in mind! Is Taiga really so scary, or is he a sweetheart in disguise?

Although Nao Kogure was once afraid of the delinquent Taiga Onise, she was soon touched by his kind soul. Nao and Taiga stopped dating when Nao became confused by her feelings for the two different men in her life. Now that they're just friends, Nao begins to realize who she truly has romantic feelings for.

Cute and has its funny moments

By Devin @ Devin's Book Hub

I don't really remember how I stumbled across the Honey So Sweet manga series, but when I did I was like "hey this sounds cute, let me see if my library has it! *checks* hey they do, let me go get it!". Thus I did. Viz is currently in the process of publishing all six volumes, with a new one coming out every three months. The third volume was released at the start of July, which I am currently awaiting for my library to get a copy of for me.

So far, with two of the six volumes read, I'm really enjoying it. It's fun watching (well, reading...) Kogure and Onsie go from not knowing anything about the other person aside from rumors to being in love with each other. Just like the story itself, the artwork is great too.

If you're wondering what Honey So Sweet is about, it's about a girl, Nao Kogure, who had given a boy, Taiga Onsie, an umbrella and box of bandaids back in middle school. (they're in high school now) She didn't know him at all, all she knew about him were the rumors – that's he's a troublemaker, a delinquent, and that he even harms little animals. In high school they run into each other and Onsie says to Kogure that he'd like to date her. Since she's scared of him and believes the rumours that he is nothing but trouble, she's scared and says yes. However, as she soon finds out, none of that is true, and Onsie is one of the sweetest and most caring people on Earth. There are plenty of funny moments in the manga, plus I love how Amu Meguro would randomly go on tangents in the pencil sketch corner of the second volume. Through those pencil sketches I discovered that we both share a love of butts. No, really! It says that!

So yep, I'm definitely liking Honey So Sweet so far!

"I know in my heart...I'll do what I can to give her...the same happiness she gives me..."

By Leaf

Nao isn't exactly your typical shojo heroine. Sure, she follows the same formula for most, but she actually confesses her feelings the moment she realizes them. She doesn't angst over them like a lot do. It helps that Onise already likes her but I'm glad she didn't try to make Sou out as a love interest. And that kiss was adorbs ^^

Friendship is the main theme of this volume. Nao and Onise decide making friends is important to them. But when we are introduced to Ayaha Futami, things get complicated. Were this any other shojo, Futami would be the love interest and Onise the second lead that would never be chosen.

Futami and Onise become close friends and at first Futami seems like a good guy. He talks back to his group of friends who were talking badly about Onise and tries to see who he is under the rumors. But at the end, the paneling makes it seem like he has other motives...

Despite the wonderful start to Onise and Nao's relationship as a couple, it seems that Futami might be another love interest. From what we've read of Nao so far, I don't think she'll let Futami get his way or sway her. If anything, I think this will be a lesson for the couple on how to deal with jealousy.

My only complaint is how much Sou dwells on the past regarding Nao. I'm unsure how he feels about her. It seems like he's genuinely happy for Onise and her, but there are times where it seems like he might have feelings for her. And now we have Futami strutting around. Please no love square.

Well, it's shojo. And a pretty realistic one at that.

A Gentle Romance

By Talvi

Honey So Sweet takes a bit of a different turn from most shoujo manga of this type in that the love triangle is quickly resolved rather than dragging on forever with trumped up angst. It's a bit of a relief but I'm also curious where the story will go from here - perhaps more like a Kimi Ni Todoke slice of life focus.

Story: Nao does some soul searching and she begins to realize that Onise has touched her heart. It gives her much needed perspective on her feelings for her step-uncle. But dating isn't easy and both Nao and Onise must fumble through their budding relationship.

Meguro continues her gentle story telling. This isn't an angsty romance so much as a slice of life. So while we don't have a lot of over-the-top drama, there still is a lovely little romance about mistaken appearances. Reviewed from an advance reader copy provided by the publisher.
